TALENT MANAGEMENT FORUM

Business Challenge

Companies are increasingly struggling to execute their business strategy, not because of flaws in strategy, but because of increased expectations of leaders and managers who must execute it. By 2014, the US Bureau of Labor Statistics projects that there will be 3 million fewer 35 to 44 year-olds in the labor force than in 2004. Ensuring a continuous supply of ready and capable leaders and managers throughout your firm is of strategic importance.

Who Will Benefit

The Talent Management Forum is designed to help front-line and senior leaders improve their ability to develop their next generation of leaders and managers.

The Focus

The Advisory Alliance's Talent Management Forum is a field-proven development program that helps leaders and managers build leadership capability in themselves and throughout their organization.

The Forum provides practical ways to engage, and retain the best talent. It ensures that leaders and managers create the time and opportunity to develop the talent they need to execute their business strategy.
